

HEATING SYSTEMS & THE INTERNET

COURSE OVERVIEW

The year is 2010 – and the cost of energy is on the minds of consumers. The technology is here to provide the energy monitoring and efficiency now demanded by your customers.

Do you have customers who want to monitor their home while away? Have you ever said “We don’t know how to do that”... or “We are not in that line of work”? The technology of today’s monitoring systems is not very different from the ordinary residential heating system controls.

The tools to meet the needs of your customers DOES EXIST – and we are here to provide training on the newest technology. We have put together a one-day class to show two of the options for residential home energy monitoring. During the class we will set up and operate the controls via the internet and show you how to complete the installation. We will discuss both the hardware and software for monitoring a home.

Learn the skills needed to be a leader in the field of energy monitoring controls and heating system communications.

You will learn about control packages from:

- Tekmar,
- Heat Timer

Also.....

- installation of controls
- the interface between the devices and controls
- internet software set up to complete the installation

Manufacturer Representatives will be available to answer questions and provide guidance related to proper set up and use of the controls.

LUNCH WILL BE PROVIDED
