

WIRING FOR GAS TECHNICIANS

COURSE OVERVIEW

This course is for technicians that have completed the NPGA Certified Employee Training Program (CETP), but are NOT FAMILIAR with the proper installation of appliance electrical service.

Maine licensing allows licensed gas technicians to complete the wiring for gas appliances from the electrical panel to the unit. CETP training does not include any instruction for the proper installation of electric service to gas appliances. This course will give you the knowledge and the practical skills to complete the wiring and meet the required codes. Before you take the cover off the electrical panel, learn the right way to do the job and do it safely.

The focus of this class will be the National Electric Codes and hands-on instruction in our state-of-the-art facility to complete actual wiring to units in our lab. Students will be able to identify and install all the required wiring to complete the electric service to gas appliances.

Students will work on lab units that include Hot Air, Hot Water Heaters and Hot Water Boilers (see photo's below)

The Code material each student will receive is a 15 page excerpt from the National Electric Code # 70.
